

Beauty in the Detail – Wedding Photography blog post sample

by Mei Yee Leong

Wedding season is on its' wonderful, way and I am really excited to see what kinds of themes and beautiful décor will be explored. I am looking forward to see what couples will be embracing, and what I will be photographing as a result!

There are many different elements and details that add that something extra special to weddings, and that help create the right ambience and atmosphere. Whether it is a floral centrepiece or a wash of colour in a drape or even a bowl of vintage sweets. These little details can really add a little extra something to a wedding theme and overall effect.

Florals are always going to be popular and a main focus of weddings but there is a particular and keen use of leaves, and foliage elements, highlighting green as a central focus. The overall effect is still traditional but with a somewhat tropical feel, owing to the overuse of plants and leaves predominantly.

Green foliage, bringing garden vibes to

Greenery has been the choice of colour for 2017 but 2018, heralds a new palette, with Ultraviolet paving the way for colour schemes everywhere (fashion, beauty and of course the wedding industry too). It is an unusual colour but it will certainly feature in many weddings, on material for bridesmaid's dresses, bouquets, and other decorative elements. Ultraviolet is a hot choice for those wanting to be on-trend and wishing to be a little bit different and edgy.

Ultraviolet hues, a beautiful accent alternative to purple ...

To wrap up the elements to look out for, coppery tones are increasingly on demand – adding a slight rustic look to any wedding (a wonderful and alternative aesthetic to the traditional silver and golds). Lights reflect off of this finish in a completely different way. Absolutely stunning. To be found on table decorative elements, such as utensils and dinner plates, lampshade for lighting and design effects on invitations ...

Elegance knows no bounds ...